Interprofessional Leadership Program

FAQs

1. What is the purpose of the Interprofessional Leadership Program?
The goal of the ILP is to develop interprofessional leaders who link public health training to community-oriented primary care practice. Primary care physicians now and in the future will need to demonstrate the interprofessional competencies to effectively deliver primary care to patients and their families within the context of the individual medical home.

2. Does the Interprofessional Leadership Program require any extra coursework?
No. In lieu of additional coursework, ILP students will take designated electives which will count toward the Master of Public Health.

3. In terms of time commitments, what will be expected of ILP participants?
The ILP will host both a journal club and the HPD Connections Café once a month. Although you will not be required to attend every session, there is a minimum requirement per semester to receive the certificate at the end of the year.

4. What is the HPD Connections Café?
Each month, the Connections Café will host a panel of guest speakers from several health professions to discuss hot topics health care from an interprofessional perspective. After the presentation, students will have the opportunity for discussion and Q&A with the speakers.

5. What are some of the benefits of joining the Interprofessional Leadership Program?
The greatest benefit to ILP students will be the ability to set themselves apart when it comes to applying for residency or a Health Services Corps position. These programs can be highly competitive. Supplementing your health-related professional degree with a Master of Public Health and training in current health care trends such as interprofessional practice will make you a unique candidate for these programs.

There will also be opportunities for exposure at national conferences as well as the possibility for publication.
