Research tools help you with research planning. Click a research tool name to learn more about it:
- Develop My Research Idea
- Plan and Track My Research
- Describe My Tests and Measures
- Track the Flow of Participants

Show me how to access research tools

Each paper in the Writing Center has its own set of these research tools associated with it. To access the tools, open a paper and click Research Lab Book in the left navigation menu. Even if you have not yet begun writing, save a paper in the meantime to begin using the tools.

Manage References

All the references you have stored in APA Style CENTRAL are available in your reference library, which is called My References. The reference library allows you to reuse references across different papers.

- Search for references in PsycINFO to save in My References.
- Create references using one of more than 80 customized reference-making forms.
- Import references from RIS files.
- Export references to RIS files.

When you click the Submit button, CENTRAL will match each reference to an APA Style reference type. Some reference types are not compatible with our forms and will not import. The message below will indicate how many of your references imported.

Please note that APA Style CENTRAL does not alter the information in the RIS file. Therefore, before using imported references in a paper, we strongly encourage you to review and edit them as needed in My References.

When reviewing an imported reference, look for the following:
1. An open trial of equine-assisted therapy for children exposed to problematic parental substance use.

Children exposed to problematic parental substance use (PPSU) often face a number of deleterious developmental outcomes, and can become known to child protection agencies. The study was designed to test the feasibility of fa...

How do you intend to use this paper?

- Student assignment
  - Does not include author note, abstract, or keywords. These sections can be added if needed.
- Professional manuscript
  - Includes the following manuscript elements by default: author note, abstract, and keywords.

Submit
Enter a Paper Title

To get started, please enter a paper title. Once you have provided the title, select Start Writing to begin by writing your text or using research planning tools. or select Add References to begin by creating your reference list. Once you enter a title, your paper will be automatically saved in My Papers, which you can access from My File Cabinet in the top navigation bar. You can change your paper title at any time by updating it in the Title section of the Title Page menu in the online editor.

Are you paraphrasing?

Explanation of narrative vs. parenthetical
Refer to APA Part 1: Basics presentation if you need more information
Are you quoting? Include page numbers.

Is your citation parenthetical or narrative?
- Parenthetical
- Narrative

Is this a quotation?
- No
- Yes

Location of the quoted text within the document:
- Page
- Paragraph

This quotation spans multiple pages.

Provide the page number(s) for the quotation. If the source has no page numbers, select "Paragraph" from the options above.

from this table. It is important to note that a key limitation of the pharmacotherapy studies conducted with BPD patients is that the majority excluded patients with active AUDs. Furthermore, the few that included patients with AUDs did not report subgroup results on patients with dual diagnoses of BPD and AUDs. As such, the generalizability of the findings to patients with dual diagnoses of BPD and AUDs is limited.

Anticonvulsants

Topiramate

Several studies have found that topiramate may be effective in reducing anger, one of the core symptoms of BPD. Nickel et al. (2004) evaluated the effects of topiramate on aggression in an 8-week randomized trial among women with diagnoses of BPD (ITT sample n = 31, 21 topiramate, 10 placebo; completer sample n = 29, 19 topiramate, 10 placebo). Anger was measured using the State–Trait Anger Expression Inventory (STAXI, Spielberger, 1988), a self-report measure. Analyses conducted with the completer sample showed that compared with the
