What is a primary source?
A study or research paper that was composed by the original researcher(s).

What is a peer reviewed (refereed) article?
Before an article is accepted for publication, journals ask at least two experts in the same field to review the submitted article under specific criteria.

What is a literature review?
A critical summary of what the scholarly literature says about the specific topic or question.
Evidence Based Practice

1. Identify specific research question
2. Determine the standard of acceptable evidence
3. Identify ALL empirical evidence that may answer that question
4. Assess the quality of that evidence
5. Compile the findings of ALL evidence meeting required standard

- SPSS comes with a large collection of sample datasets. Here within the samples folder within the SPSS Statistics folder. We’ll be using these datasets exclusively throughout the course, so you will be able to use the exact same data and follow along at every step.
Why Cite?

• Why Cite?
  • To give credit to others’ ideas and words (this includes charts, tables, and other graphics) that have influenced your work
  • To allow your reader to find your sources

• Ethical use of information
  • This includes correct citation
  • Re-using your own work is a form of plagiarism called self-plagiarism
When to Cite

- Opinions, beliefs, ideas, and theories from any source
- Direct quotes of the words used
- Summarized or paraphrased ideas
- Any information obtained that is not common knowledge
